

25 YEARS OF BOND

Roger Moore plants his tongue firmly in his cheek to host the Happy Anniversary 007 special that TV0 has slotted for next Wednesday night, before they show the first movie adapted from Ian Fleming's books, Dr No, immediately after.

He's clearly having a hoot recalling the silver anniversary of the man who says "My name is Bond, James Bond" — a role he took over when Sean Connery decided he couldn't run around the world as the finest, lustiest and most clever secret agent Britain had seen.

Australia's George Lazenby, in his only role as Bond in On Her Majesty's Secret Service, takes a back seat to the famous other two who immortalised the character on screen.

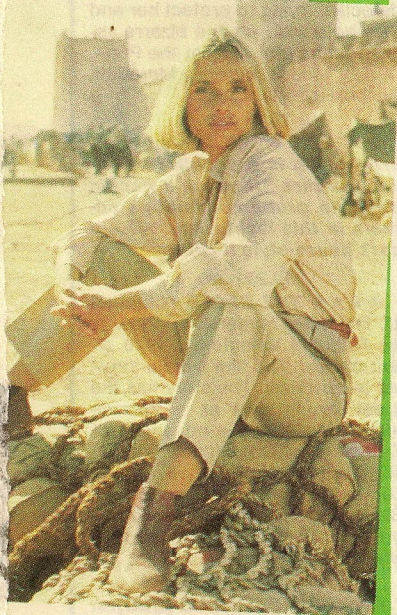

The one-off program contains some fabulous footage from the old days, when Connery was strutting his stuff and charming Miss Money Penny at headquarters, up to the new Bond, Timothy Dalton, in The Living Daylights.

And "Q", the man who invented all those fantastic gizmos for Bond to annihilate his enemies, hasn't been forgotten.

"My name is Bond, James Bond," is an introduction no one who has ever been to the flicks in the last 25 years will forget.

And the producers of vodka won't ever stop paying homage for the "martini with lemon peel. Shaken, not stirred".
